What causes our gender pay gap?

Gender pay gaps are known to be higher in companies where the main roles/occupations mean that women are underrepresented.

Rhodar's specialisms are asbestos removal, demolition, land remediation and passive fire protection, which are skilled trades. Our site employees are well paid for the work they do to take into consideration the level of skill involved and the fact that they work with a hazardous substances / large machinery. They receive additional pay to compensate them for the unsociable hours they work, including various shift patterns, weekends, nights and working away from home, plus bonuses for driving company vans. The majority of our site roles are heavily manual and have historically been very male dominated. At the snap shot date, 63% of our employees were site based and these are all male.

A considerable number of our senior positions within Rhodar are occupied by male employees as these are employees that have progressed from working on site to becoming Operational Managers. That said, we are keen to consider all of our employees for development opportunities. We have been very successful in developing some of our office staff into operational management positions and will continue to do this where opportunities arise.

The majority of our female workers are employed in a support role within our regional offices. These are also the sorts of roles where we can much more easily support flexible working. Support functions such as HR, Accounts, Procurement, IT, Marketing, etc. are provided by the holding company, the Lexia Solutions Group so are excluded from the statistics provided.

Our gender pay gap does not stem from paying men and women differently for the same or equivalent work. Rather it is the result of the roles in which men and women work within the organisation and the salaries that these roles command.

Our approach to addressing our gender pay gap

- Attracting the best people: We are committed to selecting the best person for the role, regardless of gender.
- Developing our people: Our vision is to have the best trained and most motivated people in our industry, and we ensure that progression opportunities are based on merit. We are committed to offering equal access to opportunities for both men and women to ensure that all employees are supported to reach their full potential.
- Engaging & retaining our people: We have recently added to our company benefits and continually look for further ways we can support our employees' work life balance.
- We are keen to support women returning from maternity leave and offer flexible working where possible. We are proud to say that each of our female employees that took maternity leave in the last year returned to their original role on either a full or part time basis.

Female representation is a considerably greater challenge in our industry; however, we continue to take steps to support women wherever possible. We are committed to diversity and equality in areas which we can control as a business. We will continue to work to address the gaps, ensuring policies, practices and processes are fair and free from gender bias.
